

October 31, 2009

Monterey County literacy efforts funded

A dozen Monterey County nonprofits received $402,000 in grants to promote literacy this week, the Community Foundation of Monterey County announced Friday.

The money will support young adult literacy services.

Among the recipients are adult schools in Soledad and Salinas, libraries throughout the county and Family Resources Centers in King City and Salinas.

Major contributors for the literacy campaign include First 5 Monterey County, the James Irvine Foundation and the Monterey Peninsula Foundation.
